

Your INL Update — Week of March 7, 2011

This is Misty Benjamin with your INL Update.

You are invited to attend the Free premiere of “Energy on Trial,” a new film by Gary Jobson. On Monday, March 14, the Partnership for Science & Technology with support from Idaho National Laboratory will host a free screening of the movie. The one hour film takes a closer look at the energy industry through the eyes of those closest to the topic including INL’s lab director John Grossenbacher.

National Public Radio recently recognized INL’s support of electric vehicle testing. Read more about the program at the “In the News Section” of INL.gov.

From computer guts to spacecraft skins and biomedical robots, technology is driven by materials from which the modern world is made. You are invited to learn more at a free Science Café on March 16, from 6 to 8 p.m., at the Center for Advanced Energy Studies (CAES) located on INL’s in-town campus.

This was your INL Update. You'll find more information at inl.gov, including community announcements and the latest INL news.